ABOUT THE SEMINAR:

The Indian government has a goal of transforming India into a knowledge-based economy and society. By using less cash, there is an urgent attempt to traverse to a cashless transaction economy. Eliminating black money is the main benefit of becoming a cashless society. The easiest approach to transition to a cashless economy is to digitalized transactions. By promoting electronic money instruments, creating a sound financial system, and encouraging people to do transactions online, a cashless economy can be achieved. Efficient payment systems increase financial literacy, fostering corporate expansion and consumer spending. New developments in the electronic payment of products and services promise to open up a wide range of new business options. As part of Digital India campaign, the government and other regulatory authorities, such as the NPCI, are urging citizens to use digital payments so as to reduce the risk of spreading by shared surfaces like currency or cards. While this action has expanded the number of customers covered by digital India, it has also opened the scope for more cyber frauds. In other words, the risk of increasing cybercrime is correlated with our increased usage of digital media. Cyber criminals prey on unsuspecting consumers, including novice or less tech-savvy users, by tricking them with lucrative emails, fear, and a lack of information. Moreover, particularly during covid pandemic scenario and afterwards, majority of Indians have been accustomed to digital payment system because they believed that cash can be a potential virus carrier. In support of this, most recent data from the National Payments Corporation of India (NPCI) showed that in December 2020, UPI recorded 2.23 billion digital payment transactions with a total amount of Rs. 4.16 trillion. Further the RBI predicted in 2020 that within five years, there would be 1.5 billion digital payment transactions daily, worth of about Rs. 15 trillions.

In this connection, we are going to organize a Two-Day National Seminar on 'DIGITAL TRANSACTIONS-CYBER CRIMES'. This seminar will provide an opportunity to the participants in updating their knowledge about digital transactions, in terms of current trends, challenges that are being faced and the Initiatives of the Government of India and the RBI in tackling them.

- Digital India -Issues and Challenges
- Digital Payment Methods - Problems and Prospects.
